

Your Family Law Strategist.

JULY 2024

Divorce can be a financial rollercoaster, and understanding your obligations is key to staying on track. In this issue of our Prince Law Group newsletter, we're shedding light on two important topics: "Who pays for a child's higher education after divorce?" and "Will my alimony payments increase if my income does?" Read on and get the answers you need to navigate your financial obligations and ensure you are well-informed about your rights and responsibilities.

If my income increases, will my alimony payments go up?

If your income increases after divorce, you might wonder if your alimony payments will also rise. According to Connecticut law, courts consider several factors when determining alimony adjustments, including the length of the marriage, standard of living during the marriage, and both spouses' financial resources. While a higher income can lead to increased alimony, it is not automatic; the receiving spouse must request a modification. The court will then assess the needs of both parties to ensure fairness. In this article, we break down how Connecticut courts handle these changes and what factors influence alimony adjustments.>>

Read More

Explore more blog posts on the topic of alimony>>

Who pays for a child's higher education after divorce?

Divorce can complicate financial planning, especially when it comes to your child's college education. In Connecticut, courts can order parents to contribute to these expenses based on factors like income, the child's needs, and the lifestyle the child would have had if the marriage had not ended, but many factors come into play.>>

Read More

Explore more blog posts on the topic of paying for college>>

Do you have questions about how your income changes might affect alimony or who covers your child's college costs after divorce?

Contact The Prince Law Group, LLC today for guidance. Our team is here to help you navigate these complex financial matters and ensure your rights and responsibilities are clear. Contact Wendy Prince today.

The Prince Law Group Team

HELPING YOU TAKE CONTROL OF YOUR FUTURE.

Wendy E. Prince, Esq.

Erica Burten, Esq.

Heather W. Hart, Esq.

Megan Rozell, Esq.

Alexandra Duffy, Esq.

princelawgroup.com

Connecticut: 203.977.3700 | New York: 914.750.0955

© The Prince Law Group, 2024. All Rights Reserved.

ATTORNEY ADVERTISING. Prior results do not guarantee a similar outcome. This publication/newsletter is for informational purposes only and does not contain or convey legal advice regarding any specific situation.